

This year, the Foundation was honored to host our seventh summer intern. We began the tradition of having a summer intern as a way of better understanding what our partners who host interns experience – both in preparing for and in hosting an intern. We knew we would learn from the experience and hoped to create an engaging environment for the intern to learn as well. In reflecting on our time with our newest summer intern, Shai-lynn Ranchez-Langit, we agreed that we have again found the experience to be meaningful and rewarding to us. Shai was up for any assignment. She was curious, thoughtful and an open contributor. With her dedication to her chosen field of social work, we know great things are in Shai's future. We are happy to share her blog post with you which reflects on her experiences with us this summer. Mahalo nui to Shai for choosing to share her summer with us.

Please read Shai's blog here:

<https://hauolimauloa.org/blog-by-shai-lynn-ranchez-langit-summer-intern-2018/>

Follow us on Facebook and YouTube

